- Understand your personality types, values, strengths and work styles
- Reduce anxiety about "one right path" and empowerment to own your unique professional identity
- Develop your own practical strategies to seek out opportunities, articulate your value, and build resilience by playing to your strengths

Knowing yourself is the first and most critical step in building a successful and satisfying legal career. In this workshop, you will get to dive deep into a structured self-exploration of your unique personality type, values, strengths and work styles, with the purpose to translate these insights into actionable strategies for career planning, resilience and fulfilment in the challenging and diverse legal landscape.

Students attending the workshop will not leave with a prescribed career answer, but with a personalized compass and a practical toolkit to navigate their career decisions with greater confidence, authenticity, and strategic self-awareness.
